

because there was so much for them to take care of and worry about. They had very little time to relax and enjoy the wedding. They work so hard preparing for the wedding and when that day actually arrives, the bride and groom cannot enjoy the festivities.

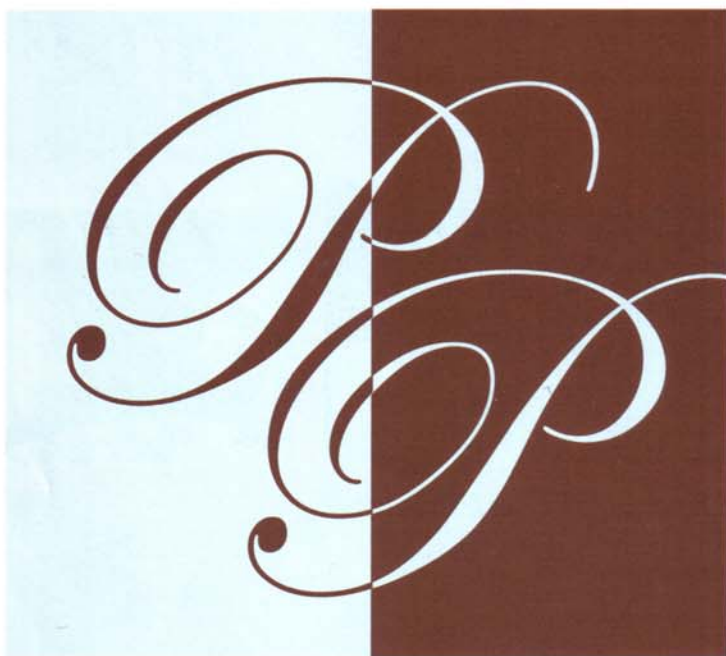

A wedding coordinator can alleviate these situations by being on hand to take care of those last minute worries and troubleshoot if needed. Wedding planners can make the wedding much easier and more enjoyable for the bride and groom. If you let the professionals do the work, iron out the details, both major and minor, you can have the memory of a fantasy wedding.

Here are a few of the things that a wedding coordinator can do for you:

- ◆ After determining a budget, your consultant can begin dreaming up details and planning ideas with you and your fiancé. A good bridal coordinator can often help you save more money on your wedding needs than what it costs to use their services.
- ◆ The wedding coordinator will focus mainly on a couple's specific likes and dislikes; and figures out ways to compromise that can make each person happy. It is one of the coordinator's jobs to mediate in the delicate family situations surrounding weddings, because they are there to make sure it is your wedding, not your families.
- ◆ Wedding coordinators make sure that everything is ordered and will be delivered at a certain time on the wedding day.
- ◆ Wedding coordinators make sure that nothing is overlooked, from the napkins to the reception hall. Your coordinator will constantly be watching the plan.
- ◆ Wedding coordinators can also be hired to supervise and coordinate just the actual wedding day, almost acting as the director of a theatrical production. They ensure that all the players, vendors, guests, bridal party, and the bride and groom are in their places and that they know what to do when the show unfolds as planned.
